THE VALUE

A catalog built for FineVines.

FineVines now publishes its current catalog directly on finevines.com. Distinct wines are presented at stable detail URLs with specific product facts. Google documents that structured product information can help it understand and present a page [1], while linked category-to-product paths help crawlers find catalog pages [2]. Numbered catalog pages and the sitemap provide additional discovery paths [3]. These practices support discovery and eligibility; they do not guarantee indexing, rankings or sales.

VARIETALS

- 1 Richer wine-page structure - Wine detail pages support producer, vintage, country, region, appellation, varietal, color, style, alcohol, bottle size and drink window; description and sommelier notes; aroma, palate and finish; food pairings; vineyard, vinification and aging detail; archive notes; producer copy; quotations; and links to other vintages.
- 2 Linked catalog pages - The portfolio is divided into numbered pages with ordinary links, so visitors and search crawlers can move through the listings without relying on infinite scroll.
- 3 Relevant legacy copy preserved - Historical tasting and terroir notes from the previous site were matched to corresponding wines where available, rather than being discarded in the migration.

04 WINE REVIEW WORKFLOW

A private review queue supports uncertain bottle images. Reviewers can compare candidates side by side, continue into a prepared Google Images search, or return a catalog wine to review by name, SKU or URL.

Compare. Inspect candidates and sources together.
Search. Widen the image search.
Replace. Return a catalog image to review.
